We are pleased to announce that Maybe Holdings Inc. has purchased all shares and stock of Zone Power Ltd from Phillip J. Slapp. Maybe Holdings, owned by Stephen Beck and Joey Mayhugh, is also the parent company of BenchMark Wireline Products.

Chris Galer, who has worked for Zone Power for 29 years, has been appointed Managing Director effective immediately. Phil will continue to serve as a consultant to help in the transition and to ensure that Zone Power maintains the high integrity, quality and service for which it is known.

As part of our long term commitment, we will soon be moving into a new 25,000 sq ft, manufacturing facility in Harleston (near Norwich/GreatYarmouth UK). This new facility will help us increase our manufacturing capacity, improve on our deliveries and increase the efficiency in developing new products and services.

Zone Power and BenchMark Wireline Products will be operated as separate entities and continue to support their customers with the same products and services as provided in the past.

We are excited about the future and are looking forward to developing new products, working with our current clients and meeting new ones.

Very best regards
